Zara Shah is a powerful woman who's shaping the course of history with her intelligence, strength, passion, and leadership qualities. She has challenged the status quo, made lasting reforms and made a difference in cultural revolutions in UK.

"It's time to stop fooling ourselves. If we truly believe in equal opportunities for all woman and men. Feminism is always controversial this is what has to change from within I'm talking about acceptance. Because women are great at building relationship, empowering others, tuning into people's need, and balancing a number of responsibilities at a time. Their skills are great asset that needs to be acknowledged".

Said Zara.

You know, on average, fortune 500 companies with more female board representatives achieved a significantly high financial performance than those with fewer female representatives.

Because when a woman adopts leadership roles they contribute a unique set of skills, ideas, and life experiences that can broaden the entire company's insight, strategies and outlook.

So the best way is by creating a supportive environment that actively empowers women to lead and shine". She added.

"Last but not least I want to give a shoutout to all the ladies out there;

"Who love and respect themselves as well as each other, to those who support and encourage other women instead of tearing them down, and to those minding their business and slaying their goals." She conquers.
